She was built in 1849 by Charles Mare, of Blackwall, celebrated for his steam models; and registers 330 tons, exclusive of her engine-room

Her length is	175 feet
Breadth	25 „

and her engines of 80-horse power are by the well-known manufacturers Maudslay, Sons, and Field, of Lambeth. They are upon the direct acting principle, and are of very superior strength. Her screw is of brass, and both feathers, and disconnects. The vessel is also fitted with Sir Snow Harris' new lightning conductors.

The accommodations of the Hellespont surpass anything that has yet been seen in the inter-colonial trade for a vessel of her size.

Her inventory may be seen at the office of the agents, and will be found to be very complete, so that the vessel is ready to go to sea at the shortest notice. She has 90 tons coals on board, which will be sold to the purchaser at a rate to be agreed upon.

The Hellespont has proved herself to be the fastest screw steamer afloat, having made the passage to the Cape of Good Hope, and back to England, including all stoppages in 72 days.

The agents need only further invite intending purchasers to inspect the vessel now lying in the Cove, and a visit will satisfy them that she is worthy of the name she bears in London—"the Blackwall Yacht."

The Jack, brig, for Moreton Bay, returned to port on Sunday evening through stress of weather.

In consequence of the inclement state of the weather, the City of Melbourne, for Morpeth, which left here on Saturday, has been obliged to return to port, and will leave again as soon as the weather moderates. From the same cause, the Tamar, steamer, has been detained until this evening at 9 P.M.

There were reports in town yesterday that three vessels had been wrecked near Botany heads. One of our shipping reporters rowed out, but could get no authentic information, and we are therefore in hopes that the reports may be untrue or exaggerated. The sea is running fearfully high.

On Sunday night Captain Chadwick, of the Harriet, went on board the Australian, emigrant ship, off the Cove, taking two men with him in his boat, and when about to leave, one of the boatmen, in going down the side, unfortunately fell overboard and was drowned. The body has not been yet found.

DOMESTIC INTELLIGENCE.

DISCOVERY OF GOLD.

The following letter from Count Strzelecki to Mr. T. Walker will be read with interest:—

Athenæum Club, 25th November, 1852.

My Dear Mr. Walker,—I do not know whom I am to thank for the Sydney Herald, of May, 1851, which was sent to me to the Athenæum, and which I found on my return to England. But this I know, fully and sincerely do I acknowledge my obligations to you for the kind manner in which you have taken up the defence of my claims to the priority in the discovery of gold in Australia.

That you should have preserved one of my letters bearing the date of 1839, and which so strongly establishes the fact which you are maintaining, is to me as surprising as gratifying. I was under the impression, until I saw it actually in print, that the only person with whom I had communicated upon the subject of gold was the late Sir George Gipps, to whom I handed the specimens both representing the metal as attached to the rock and as disintegrated from it; besides some other specimens in which gold was chemically combined with other metals. Sir George Gipps considered the discovery of gold (as I confess I considered it myself) more as a mineralogical curiosity than an economic element of value, and entreated me not to say anything about its existence, for fear of creating an unnecessary perturbation in the colony, and rendering the discipline of the convict population difficult. This was also the opinion of the Home authorities on my return to England in 1843, on whom I pressed the urgency of sending out a qualified person to New South Wales and to other colonies, at Canada, to examine and report upon its mineral treasures, so that measures should be prepared beforehand, which would or could modify the consequences of the so much dreaded perturbation.

Thus I was silenced, by reasons and arguments which I considered weighty enough to prompt me to bow to the interests of the community, and hold my tongue, and to limit myself to the mentioning of the circumstance to Captain King and some friends here in England. I was not therefore taken by surprise when subsequent researches of others made the discovery of gold public: but I was amazed and surprised at the rich deposits they found, and which, while they exceed all reasonable expectations, do not produce actually such perturbation as was then dreaded. It is true, the event happened eleven years later, and found the colony grown up in self-government, and strong enough to control herself even while intoxicated with success. I receive from all parts most gratifying intelligence of the onward movement of the Australian colonies, and have not the least doubt but that that part of the world, one of the latest which has been settled by the Anglo-Saxon race, will form one of the proudest memorials of colonisation of Great Britain.

Nothing would give me now a greater pleasure than to revisit New South Wales, and contemplate the changes which happened; but my health which was once robust and proof against climes and fatigue and privation, was shaken by a typhus fever, which I caught while discharging some public duties in Ireland. I went there in 1846, remaining up to 1850, and during the two last years have been on the sick list, resting in more genial climes, and without power of applying myself to the performance of new duties.

Believe me, most sincerely yours,

P. E. DE STRZELECKI.

ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE.—This evening, Mr. and Mrs. Stark, who have obtained a high reputation throughout the States of the Union, and who have recently arrived here from San Francisco, will make their first appearance before a Sydney audience in Shakspere's tragedy of Hamlet. Report speaks very highly of these artistes.

We are requested to direct particular attention to John G. Cohen's extensive sale of glassware and lamps, the whole of which will positively be sold. The sale will not be postponed on any account. Terms, liberal. Sale commences precisely at 11 o'clock.

Buyers of general merchandise are reminded that R. Muriel sells, this day, Tuesday, at half-past ten o'clock, a great variety of goods, at the stores of Messrs. A. Bogue and Co., Pitt-street—vide advertisement. N.B.—This sale will not be postponed on account of the wet weather.

WESLEYAN MISSIONARY MEETING.—The annual meeting of the New South Wales Auxiliary Wesleyan Missionary Society, appointed to be held in the Centenary Chapel, York-street, last evening, was postponed, in consequence of the inclemency of the weather, until Monday, the 27th instant.

THE WEATHER.—The easterly gale continued all Sunday night and until two o'clock yesterday; the wind was very heavy all the time, and some of the gusts were terrifically so. The rain fell on Sunday night in heavy showers, with very little time between them, but after the wind lulled yesterday there were several hours' continuous heavy rain, without the slightest intermission. If the rain has extended into the interior we may expect to hear of floods.

COMMITTALS.—Mary Ann Sheedy and Julia Johnson were yesterday brought before the Mayor, pursuant to remand, and were fully committed to take their trial at the Quarter Sessions, for having robbed one Margaret M'Lean of two £1 notes, one sovereign, and two half-crowns, at the Railway public house, Haymarket, on Friday evening.—Margaret Hilliard was committed to take her trial for stealing from the door of a draper's shop in Pitt-street, on Saturday evening, four polka jackets of the value of 45s. They were found in her possession; she at first alleged that she had purchased the goods, and subsequently said that she found them.

STEALING FROM A SHIP.—Philip Williams, belonging to the Penyard Park, lying at the foot of Bathurst-street, has reported to the Police that on Sunday night he met with an acquaintance in town, whom he took on board and accommodated with a bed. On Monday morning he missed his friend, and a jacket, two pairs of trousers, and one pair of shoes—the whole valued at £6.

DESERTION.—Henry Lees, painter and glazier, was yesterday, for sixth or seventh time, brought before the Bench for having deserted his wife and family. Mrs. Lees deposed that she had six children, the youngest being but a few weeks' old; that on last Saturday week her husband gave her £1 to pay the rent, but nothing since; that he had been offered £3 a week, but could earn much more if he would but attend to his business; he spent nearly the whole both of his time and money in public houses, and was well able to support his family but for his excessive indulgence in drink; three times the magistrate had made an order for maintenance, the last about two months since, but he only made the first payment. Their worships, (the Mayor and Mr. Dowling,) commented strongly on the unfeeling conduct of Lees, and remanded the present charge for one week; and instructed Mrs. Lees in the meantime, to proceed as for non-compliance with the last order.

LUNACY.—A poor fellow named Edmondson was on Sunday morning found by Constable Tudor raving at the corner of George-street and King-street, who believing him to be mad confined him for protection. The defendant was yesterday brought before the Bench. Tudor having given evidence to the man's conduct, and Dr. Rutter having testified that the man was decidedly insane from the effect of drink, he was sent to gaol for one month in default of sureties for his good behaviour.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.—On Saturday forenoon, Constable Rochford apprehended a man of respectable appearance named Christie, from information that he had taken poison with intent to commit suicide. His appearance at the lock-up confirmed the information, and a medical man was called in, who after administering an emetic, directed his removal to the Infirmary. Yesterday Christie was brought before the Bench, but, the witnesses not being in attendance, he was remanded on bail until Wednesday. Jealousy, it is alleged, led to the insane act. Christie, however, denies the charge as totally unfounded.

RESULT OF SALES.—Mr. Dodd sold by auction, at East Maitland, on Friday last, 135 head of fat cattle, belonging to Mr. Charles Button, of the Namoi River, viz—11 head at each 92s. 6d.; 21 at 88s.; 16 at 86s. 6d.; 14 at 81s.; 19 at 77s. 6d.; 22 at 75s. 6d.; 17 at 74s.; 15 at 63s.; being an average of £3 19s. 3d. per head. Total, £535 6s.

Purkis and Lambert sell, this day, at the mart, at eleven o'clock, polkas, French mantles, cloth cloaks, French merinos, boys' caps, damaged counterpanes, sheeting, shawls, &c.

We are requested to call the attention of new arrivals and others to the furniture sale at the Labour Bazaar, Pitt-street, (postponed from yesterday,)—will take place this morning, at 11 o'clock.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

SUPREME COURT.—MONDAY.

NISI PRIUS SITTINGS.

BEFORE Mr. Justice DICKINSON.

JURORS.

Upon the calling over of the Jury panel only five gentlemen answered to their names, and as the Sheriff was unable to point out a sufficient number of talesmen from among the bystanders, the Court was necessarily adjourned until this morning. The chief cause of these inconveniences is the practice which we have formerly had occasion to condemn, of employing the constables to summon Jurors instead of having the summons served by the officers of the Sheriff. In the first place, the service is not well conducted, and in the second, it is generally found impossible to procure proof of service so as to enforce attendance by the imposition of fines. Consequently, while effecting a trifling saving in the expenses of this department of Justice, inconvenience to ten times the extent and importance of this saving is created.

CAUSE LIST, TO-DAY.—Marsh v. Perris, Maclean v. Aitken, Dangar and others v. Champion, Foster v. Hughes, Stubbs v. Harris, Lewis v. Were, Fuller v. Jones, Nowland v. Eales.

COUNCIL PAPERS.

DENOMINATIONAL SCHOOLS.

ANNUAL REPORT FOR 1852.

SCHOOL REGULATIONS.

THE Board have not found it necessary to make any change in the regulations for the management of the schools from those adopted in previous years.

FINANCE.

Under the head Finance may be mentioned the very important alteration that was made during the session of 1851, in the distribution of the vote for the support of the schools of the different denominations, by proportioning it according to the census of that year, the previous division having been as follows, viz.:—

Church of England..	£4020
Presbyterian	1900
Wesleyan	570
Roman Catholic	1860
	£8350
Church of England..	£4364
Presbyterian	851
Wesleyan	469
Roman Catholic	2666
	£8350

The Board felt much concern in the injury sustained by the Presbyterians in obliging them to reduce the number of their schools, but in justice to the other denominations it was unavoidable.

NUMBER OF SCHOOLS.

The number of schools under each denomination at the end of the years 1851 and 1852, were as follows, viz.:—

Church of England	1851.	1852.
Sydney Diocese... / Newcastle do. ...	79	92
Presbyterian	36	14
Wesleyan	10	8
Roman Catholic	35	49
Totals	160	163

shewing an increase in the number of schools of three, exclusive of those that were temporarily suspended from want of teachers.

PAYMENT OF SALARIES.

During the year another important alteration has been made in the mode of paying the teachers' salaries, by which they can receive them within a few days after the expiration of the month at the Office of the Board, instead of, as was previously the case, at the Treasury—a measure which has proved to be very advantageous to the parties concerned; this important change however has so very greatly increased the duties of the Secretary as to make it imperative on the Board to recommend to the Government an increase of the salary attached to that office, in order that his entire services may be at their command.

Upon the whole the Board have much reason to be satisfied with the state of the schools of the denominational system, and have only to regret that in many cases the country school-houses are much dilapidated, which, however, from the limited sum at the disposal of each denomination cannot be helped.

MELBOURNE MARKETS.

Melbourne, 6th June, 1853.

Sir,—The active demand for all kinds of goods which we advised last month has ceased, with the closing of the roads to the diggings. Our arrivals have been very extensive, both from England and America, and include 6002 passengers.

Breadstuffs of all kinds are decidedly lower, especially Flour, which it will be observed has come in in immense quantities from America. The greater part of it is still in the bay, and with present freights and charges here, and the chance of a portion turning sour, it can hardly at present rates pay the importers. Considerable quantities of Wheat have also arrived from India, but have not yet been tested; and large parcels of Oats have come from England and America, in fair condition. Flour is worth about £30 in sack, and 45s. in barrel, for best brands; Oats, 15s.; Potatoes, £15 to £16 10s.; Maize, 14s. 6d. to 15s.; Bran, 4s. 9d.; and Hay about £30. Bacon and Hams, Cheese and Butter, are all in good supply, at our quotations.

Wines and Spirits, particularly Brandy, have come to hand freely, and have given way a little. There are large quantities unavailable in the bay, and, as winter advances and ships increase, much inconvenience is felt, from the difficulty of getting all kinds of goods from thence; and if measures are not soon taken to extend the limits of our port, and provide increased facilities for landing goods with despatch, there will be no end to the fluctuations of our market, as goods may as well be in England as in the bay at present.

Building materials command increased rates, and sales to any amount could be made at our quotations.

The Escorts have brought down 148,612 ounces of gold, which has maintained its price during the month.

Our Wool quotations are quite nominal, and the little that is shipped is still at 1½d. per lb.

We remain, Sir, yours respectfully,

COFFEY, HILL, AND CO.

NEWS FROM THE INTERIOR.

BRAIDWOOD.

JUNE 8.—It is with much pleasure I mention that Mr. Mann has completed his survey of the road from Braidwood to the Clyde, and reports that it is perfectly practicable. The distance is a little more than 30 miles; the difficulty is only on one mile of the road. This mile will require considerable labour to render it passable, but the rest is perfectly easy. The road is brought by this survey to a part of the Bay where vessels of 150 tons can float, and there is nothing to prevent this very desirable end being soon accomplished. We do hope that as the Government has now done its part, the inhabitants of the district will not fail in doing theirs. Mr. Mann has suggested that some of those who are most interested in the matter should themselves take a trip and see the road he has marked out, that they may thus be better able to judge what will be required to put it in travelling order. A black fellow is, I believe, still in the town, who is well acquainted with the country, and will be ready to accompany any who may start on such a trip. We would also urge the propriety of at once calling a public meeting of the inhabitants of the town and district for the purpose of presenting a memorial to the Government for assistance in the matter in both money and men. We must also remember the old adage that "those get help from others who first help themselves," and a subscription list should at once be opened. A Committee should also be appointed whose duty it should be to communicate with the settlers and graziers residing in the Queanbeyan and Maneroo districts, representing to them the advantage that will accrue from opening up the coast communication, and inviting their assistance. Perhaps it is too much to expect that this year's clip should be forwarded via Bateman's Bay. At any rate there is nothing to prevent that of 1854-55 being so sent to the metropolis. The great difficulty will no doubt be the want of labour. I do not even regard this, however, as insuperable. Many in the winter months are disinclined for digging, and would not be unwilling to employ themselves at some other occupation. Of course they must be paid, and paid well, but what is this in a district teeming with gold? And may we not hope for other labour? What are our prisoners doing? What are the confinees in some of our county gaols about? Might they not be well engaged in some such works as these? This is a subject which should be brought under the notice of the authorities in the memorial I have suggested. We do hope that no time will be lost, that our good townsfolk and landed proprietors will shake off their apathy, and set to work in right earnest. All excuse is now taken away. The general remark before was, "We can do nothing till the Goverment has sent a surveyor." Well, he has been sent and has done his work. We have nothing to grumble at now, and therefore let us set to work. I will not repeat all the arguments in favour of the project. Do not the arguments present themselves to aid in the very tangible form of pounds, shillings, and pence? At this time £20 a ton and more is paid for carriage, and difficult to be had even at that price. A little energy would now be amply repaid by the substantial prosperity that must follow on the establishing of this new and speedy communication between Braidwood and Sydney. I am writing hurriedly, in order to catch the post, but will not let the matter rest.

I must not allow the death of an old colonist and an old resident in the district to pass unnoticed. Captain John Coghill, having nearly numbered threescore years and ten, died last week at Liverpool, on his return from Sydney. It will be remembered that this gentleman, in the first election of members for the Legislative Council, in 1843, was returned without opposition as representative of the united counties of St. Vincent and Auckland. He has long acted as chairman of our bench of magistrates, and was the largest landed proprietor in the district. An affection of the heart was, I believe, the proximate cause of death. The remains are to be interred in the family vault on the estate in the course of the week. From the diggings I have no news of interest to communicate. The weather still continues very cold, i. e., we have frosty mornings, when the glass falls a few degrees below freezing point. The days are beautifully clear, and the air fresh and bracing. The abundance of water is generally complained of by the diggers as a serious hindrance. Two good prospects of about 7 dwts. have been obtained on the Bedernole estate during the past week, and it is generally supposed that there will be a valuable gold field on this property during the ensuing spring. At present to work it, for the cause I have above stated, will be utterly impracticable. I must on a future occasion say a few words on the much talked of matter,—the license fee. I confess I am not one of those who would advocate its discontinuance. In this case I am half inclined, improper though it be, to avow myself in some sort a protectionist. Of this, however, at another time.

ORIGINAL CORRESPONDENCE.

COLONIAL SEAMEN.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—The accompanying letter from "a Liverpool shipowner," in the Times of December last, will, although it refers to "Manning the Navy," be found to contain some excellent hints for "Manning our Colonial Marine,"—or, in plainer words, increasing the number of seamen and apprentices in the Australian ports. With anything of encouragement, scores, possibly hundreds, of native lads from 12 to 16 years of age, could be induced to join in the commencement of a naval school,—as already commended to the patronage and support of the shipowners, merchants, and traders of Sydney. The attempt should certainly be made, were it only as an Industrial School, a class of institutions common throughout Britain and Ireland; though no one in this colony, except Mr. Pennington, a lecturer at the Sydney School of Arts, seems to have noticed it. That this attempt should no longer be delayed, seeing it so much involves the character of the port of Sydney, and the interests of youth born on its very shores,—the National Education or Steam Navigation Board could, as one of the arrangements contemplated by Government for the extension of education, at once commence such an institution, and thus give some hope of future supplies of well-trained seamen. Does not every shipowner, merchant, and trader, complain day after day of the want of hands? Yet what effort has been made to relieve it in the slightest degree? Surely the time has arrived, not only for this, but for greater efforts towards the establishment amongst us of these institutions, which in the mother country, and also America, for more than a century, have so essentially contributed to their greatness as naval and commercial nations.

The wants of Australia in the department of colonial marine, as well as the deficiencies of existing establishments, whether for public or private education, at a time when the means of supplying them are so ample, present of themselves grounds quite sufficient for that "enquiry into the state of general education" which the Member for the Northumberland Counties, so much to his credit, is labouring to institute.

The promise of the Government to increase the expenditure on education would seem to give this inquiry "the go-by," but this should determine the Council to increased vigilance in having the money spent wisely. True there is much important business on hand, but let not education, the most vital of all national concerns, want its proper position—its share of consideration—in the proceedings of the Legislative Council.

By all means press the inquiry, and amongst the recommendations of the Committee let it be one to establish a naval school in the port of Sydney; another to establish industrial schools in every county of the colony; another, to endow an athenæum or public library for those classes of the people that are less indebted to national and university education—the hundreds of clerks and shopmen, of whom as respects such supplementary education, nothing has yet been done in Australia. Many other recommendations will present themselves as the inquiry proceeds.

I remain, Gentlemen, yours, &c.,

A COLONIST.

THE NATIONAL BOARD OF EDUCATION. REPORT FOR 1852.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—I have just finished the perusal of the Report of "The Commissioners of National Education in New South Wales for 1852," published in your supplement of June 1st, and with your permission will make a few observations upon it and matters connected therewith. It is a brief report and rather meagre, but it nevertheless states some facts which are instructive.

1. The Report states that 54 schools have been in operation during the year 1852, attended by 3740 children. But whether this is intended for the average attendance during the whole year or only a part, or whether it was the number on the rolls at the end of each quarter, or in what other way the numbers are to be reckoned, since the returns are not before me, I have no means of guessing. But I wish to call attention to what I know to be a fact, viz., that the returns from the country districts are not always to be depended on. I firmly believe, and have it from good authority; that £50 or £60 per annum is sometimes expended for the instruction of not more than 12 or 15 children. In one instance, when a gentleman was invited to pay a visit to a National School in his neighbourhood (in the country), which was reported to have about 40 children in attendance—he found only a fifth of that number; and this he afterwards learnt was the usual amount. I have heard of several other instances of a similar kind. And in this way the Board, who know no better, are imposed on and deceived.

2. It will be remembered by every one what an outcery was made by the Presbyterian Church when it was proposed to make a new distribution of the grant to the Denominational Board. It was said that members of the Legislative Council were impressed by it, that great injury would be done to the Presbyterian schools and teachers, and that they would be compelled to place themselves under the wing of the National Board for support, which they accordingly did, to a certain extent. The National Board also obtain a large additional vote (I think £2000,) mainly upon the understanding that it would be required for these schools. But what does the Report tell us upon this subject? "Twenty-five schools," it states, "were named by the Moderator of the Presbytery for our adoption, and we at once intimated our readiness to support them provisionally, by defraying their current salaries, pending such inquiry as was requisite to ascertain whether they could be newly organized in accordance with our regulations. We regret to state that such organization proved to be practicable in the case of four only. Eight of these 25 offered schools had been abandoned past recal, and were in fact non-existent at the time when the list was handed to us! Others were found to be held within a close proximity to places of denominational worship, and thus excluded from our support by one of our fundamental regulations. Some were abandoned on account of the paucity of scholars, or of their adaptation for amalgamation with other National schools already established; and as to others, our aid was declined by the masters or local supporters, through unwillingness to conform to our system."

Thus, then, it appears that after all, no great injury was sustained by the Presbyterian body through the withdrawal of the money which they had unfairly received for years. They were enabled, cleverly enough, to get rid of a number of schools which had only a nominal existence, and of others which they could not have maintained for want of scholars. And the National Board obtained a large additional vote from the Legislature to make provision for four new schools.

I think these are facts from which our Legislature ought to learn a profitable lesson and not again yield to the clamour of a small party without inquiry. A few turbulent spirits often gain more by their noise than a hundred times as many quiet sensible people, who are averse to thrusting themselves on public notice; and impudence is too frequently permitted in this way to get the upper hand of principle.

3. The board, I perceive, acknowledge the difficulty they experience in procuring suitable inspection for these schools. This is a difficulty which will increase instead of being diminished, and I make no doubt that they will eventually find it impossible to carry out anything like efficient inspection. It has ever appeared to me that the present National System of Education never can obtain general support for this very reason. For, while all or any of the religious denominations can provide the necessary supervision for their schools without expense—the clergy and ministers of religion considering it a matter of duty, and a most important means of usefulness,—the board can supply only an occasional inspection, and not even this without a large expenditure of the public money.

There may be, now and then, a few persons in a neighbourhood who will take a slight interest in such a school. But I may appeal to past experience (if it be faithfully recorded) to prove that such cases are rare. In 9 cases out of 10 I believe the master and mistress of the national schools are left to themselves. But when the government inspector comes round—due notice being given—every thing is, of course, ready for his approval.

4. In concluding their report, the board express a hope that they may not only be able to proceed with greater vigour, when circumstances are more favourable, but that they may also receive the cordial co-operation of their fellow-colonists in each separate locality.

Are we to infer from this that they begin to feel the want of that co-operation? Are they aware that other systems are gaining ground, and attaching to them the sympathy and confidence of the people? Possibly this is the case. And there may be some misgivings in the minds of leading members of the board that after all some other scheme must be adopted to satisfy the wants and wishes of the inhabitants of this colony. Victoria, we know, has discovered this, and has wisely determined to be guided by the experience of the mother country. She has resolved to assimilate her plans of education to those adopted by the committee of the Privy Council. And well would it be for New South Wales if, in this respect, she were equally wise.

It does appear to me, Gentlemen, to be the duty of Government and the Legislature to see that the money voted for public education is spent justly and economically. And that system of education has the strongest claims to be preferred which experience proves to be at once the cheapest and the most efficient. This is a question, however, which cannot be determined without enquiry. The time may, nevertheless, have now come when such enquiry may be made with some prospect of success. Let it, however, be made impartially and thoroughly,—not with a view to support preconceived theories, or establish tyrannical regulations opposed to the just liberty of conscience and the rights of Christian men, but to do that which is really best for the country, best for the interests of religion and sound morals, and calculated to be a blessing to all coming generations. Those who do this will earn for themselves the gratitude of posterity, and will have the satisfaction of having done their duty.

I am, Gentlemen, your obedient servant,

ECONOMIST.

ENGLISH EXTRACTS.

MANNING THE NAVY.

To the Editor of the Times.

Sir,—I beg to call your attention to the American President's Message. He recommends the formation of an apprenticeship system for boys, in order to create a supply of seamen for the United States navy. The President strongly approves of the application of such system to the merchant service.

Some two years since I addressed the Earl of Derby (then Lord Stanley) on the same subject, laying before him the fact that the owners' law of carrying apprentices in our marine being done away with, the shipowners of Great Britain would soon feel the want of seamen.

As a shipowner of many years' experience, I presume to recommend the establishment of floating schools at all our great ports, stating as follows:—

Some of the old hulks at Chatham or Portsmouth would suit the purpose.

The boys to be supplied from the unions around each station.

The hulks to be rigged and sails bent.

The captain and officers to belong to the merchant service only.

Each boy to be kept on board for six months, and taught to "go aloft, hand, and reef," and do the various ship duties, learn how to pull and steer a boat, and box the compass.

A stout lad with six months of such training would be worth 15s. per month on board a merchantman, and his food; he would readily and gladly be taken.

Under the old apprenticeship law, boys were a continual pest to us, and always ran away after they learned a little duty; we were only bringing up men for the Yankee merchantmen, and not for ourselves. This is a known fact.

The late Chancellor's boon of £100,000 per annum to us was little more than moonshine: the saving divided among us was a mere trifle. Let that sum, added to poll duty, if I may use the word, on every vessel of every nation trading to England, be applied to pay for the establishments named, and a far greater boon would be given to us. The duty per vessel ought to vary, according to tonnage, from £2 to £7 per annum.

His Lordship did not notice the suggestion; perhaps you may think the subject worth consideration.

I remain, Sir, your most obedient servant,

A LIVERPOOL SHIPOWNER.

Liverpool, December 24.

From the Times.)

WHAT shall we do with our convicts? The Government have at last seen the wisdom of not thrusting them upon repudiating colonists. They could not be landed at the Cape of Good Hope, they are not to be carried near the gold fields, and even Van Diemen's Land is to be held free from any further cargoes of our condemned European criminality. What is to be done? The Ex-Colonial Secretary leans towards Moreton Bay, where we are told that the settlers would be glad to get convict labour. Another proposition is to convert the Falkland Islands into a penal settlement. Others, again, call to mind the offer of Sir James Matheson to make the country a present of the island of Rona, in the North Sea, capable of being converted into a convict depôt on a large scale. Whilst, others, again, say abolish transportation altogether. Of these various intentions and suggestions, the first is the best, and the last the very worst. It is quite right and proper, as we have long argued, to relieve our rising colonies from the taint of our rejected roguery; but it will be a most fatal error if—whilst relieving others of a deadly nuisance—we go to the other extreme, and keep that nuisance under our own noses. If convicts who have "served their time" become, when freed, a source of evil in a new country where there is ample space for the labour of all who are willing to work, how much greater an evil must they be in an old country where there is barely room for the energies of the most honest and industrious? One great difference between the chief cities of England and France has been the much greater proportional amount of the criminal class in Paris than in London. The streets in some portions of Paris are notoriously unsafe for pedestrians after midnight, whilst the readiness with which a barricade could always be made by desperadoes is equally undeniable. In London the streets are safe, and barricading is unknown. One great reason of the difference has been that in France they have sent their convicts to galleys and prisons whence they emerge ten times more vicious than they entered. Once free from duresse, the forçat's only refuge is the greatest city he can reach. They all swarm to Paris. In its narrowest streets and dirtiest courts they are more out of sight than they can be elsewhere, whilst its size and wealth offer ready opportunities for preying on the fruits of that industry they are little inclined to imitate. Do we need to add to our stock of the "dangerous classes?" Do we want to let loose in London all the Hacketts and Turpins who have served their seven years in Millbank or in Pentonville? Do we wish to test the power of prison discipline to convert the convicted burglar of to-day into the exemplary citizen of this day seven years? Do we want to add to our chance of being garotted in the streets, or waylaid on the highways? If so, let us abolish transportation altogether. Let us imitate the French, by letting our released criminals flock back to their old haunts of crime to be re-polluted, if they be reformed, or to pollute others if they be not. We shall then never lack horrors for our criminal courts, candidates for the gallows, or felonious ingredients for an emeute.

Whilst wisely and justly relieving the Australians from the injury inflicted on them by our convicts, it is surely not necessary that we should damage ourselves still more by keeping the criminals at home. We may wisely adopt a middle course by selecting a new spot on which criminal exiles may be located—a place where they can no longer endanger the community they have injured, and may yet have some hope of enjoying a reformed and useful future. Sir John Pakington last night repeated the suggestion that they might be sent to Moreton Bay, where the settlers are said to wish for convicts. In support of this proposition it is urged by some, that in the youth of a distant colony the forced labour of criminals has so great a value that the colonists are willing to overlook many evils such labour may bring with it. On the other hand, however, many of the objections urged against transportation to Van Dieman's Land tell with equal force against its extension to any portion of Australia, however distant from Sydney or the gold fields. Transportation should be a punishment carrying with it a sense of terror to all evil doers. It should be a real punishment, and be popularly known as such. For many years the general idea amongst the poor, and the criminal class in England was, that "going over the herring pond"—as the slang phrase ran—was not so very bad after all; and now that the words Australia and gold field are synonymous, the notion of transportation has not only lost much of what terror it once conveyed, but in scores of instances has been looked upon as desirable. Of this we had one terrible example in the regimental mutiny in the Ionian Islands, only checked by a summary military execution, and another in the case of the man Horler, who in the condemned cell of Newgate said he should never have cut his wife's throat, had he not expected the sentence for his crime to be transportion to Australia—"where he could get on very well." Apart, then, from the very proper objection which the Australian colonists have to any portion of their continent being made a criminal depot, it is desirable that we should have a penal settlement the very name of which should be associated with coercion and punishment, instead of one brightened by visions of liberty and wealth. We must have such a settlement, but it cannot be found upon the Australian continent.

The Falkland Islands would afford plenty of animal food,—but are deficient in timber and corn. The fogs of Newfoundland would convey a gloomy terror to the mind of the criminal; but Canada would object to great cargoes of criminality in their neighbourhood. On the coast of Africa it has been suggested that convicts might be usefully engaged in public works; and some of the advocates for cutting a Darien canal ask why the convicts of England and the United States should not be engaged on that task. All these may probably come in for future consideration. Meanwhile, Sir James Matheson's island of Rona off Scotland still stands in its gloomy sea—38 miles N.E. of the Butt of Lewis, with which and Cape Wrath it forms a triangle—ready to become, if so required, the seat of a penitentiary where criminals might undergo a probationary course preliminary to removal to such new scene of convict labour as Parliament, in its wisdom, may see fit to order. In a memorandum of "Considerations suggested in recommendation of the plan of a penal settlement at Rona," we find these points urged:

1st. The large saving of the expense of transportation to Australia or any other distant colony.

2ndly. The facility of guarding the convicts in Rona, from its having only three landing places, two of which are difficult of access; while the rest of the island is surrounded by high cliffs, more or less abrupt.

3rdly. The means of out-door employment to the convicts in cultivating the ground, in addition to the usual in-door occupations of a penitentiary.

4thly. While the attractions of transportation to Australia, &c., operate in some degree as a premium to crime, more especially since the discovery of the gold regions, it is thought that the dreary prospect of passing some joyless years in the midst of the stormy billows of the North Sea would tend much more to deter from crime, and, from its sobering effect on the mind, would afford a better chance of reclaiming the guilty from their vicious habits.

In Rona there would at least be isolation from the honest without the cost of walls—the means of industrial exercise in tilling the soil—and an impossibility of escape more complete than if the prisoners were at St. Helena itself. But whether Rona be good or bad—chosen or rejected—we must not have convicts turned out of our prisons into their old haunts in our towns. We must not run the risk of adding to our stock of the "dangerous classes."

In reference to the new constitution for the Cape, the London correspondent of the Cape Town Mail writes:—"The Aberdeen Administration has hitherto been very successful, and has continued to rise in public estimation since the commencement of its parliamentary activity. The Cape public will doubtless share in the common sentiment with regard to it, on learning that the promise made concerning the constitution has been punctually kept, and that the ordinances go out by this packet in a form which is here considered likely to give general satisfaction in the colony. The precise particulars, unfortunately, cannot be stated, as the Government deem it proper that they should be first made known in the colony by the Governor—such being the law of official etiquette—and have therefore withheld them for the present from public knowledge. Enough, however, has transpired to enable me to assure you that the point about which the colonists have been most anxious—namely, the suffrage has been arranged in a manner which seems calculated to meet the views of all parties—at least, of all who really desire the establishment of representative government at the Cape. The low franchise has been retained for the Assembly, while a higher qualification—probably that proposed last year by the Council—has been adopted for the Upper House. Under this arrangement, the Lower House will be the guardian of the personal rights of the inhabitants of all classes, but especially the poorer class; while the Upper House will be so constituted as to prevent any apprehensions of an invasion of the rights of property. In time, it will, probably, be discovered by the proceedings of the Assembly that such apprehensions are groundless with the lowest suffrage; in which case an address to the Crown from both Houses of the Colonial Parliament will be all that will be required in order to get rid of the high franchise and the double registration;—if that should be thought desirable. It may be found, on trial, that there are some advantages in having two classes of electors; and the experiment at all events can do no material injury to any class or interest. I mention them as among the considerations which are supposed to have weighed with the Government in coming to a decision on a point about which so much perplexity had been designedly raised. The friends of the colony in England hope that the decision will be satisfactory to the Cape people."

ENCAMPMENT OF THE BRITISH ARMY.—Captain Higginson, 3rd battalion Grenadier Guards, has been engaged for several days past in taking a survey of Ascot Heath, for the purpose of selecting the most eligible position for an encampment of 7000 of the household brigade and regiments of the line, which are to be encamped there in May and June next. Surveys have also been made in the Great Park, Hounslow, and at Bagshot Heath, where it is intended to encamp at the same time as many regiments as can be spared from all the military stations in this country. Reviews, at which the Queen and his Royal Highness Prince Albert, with the royal family, will be present, will take place at this time, upon a scale of grandeur which has not been witnessed in England since the days of George III.—Bell's Messenger, February 28.

IRON CHURCH FOR THE GOLD FIELDS.—At the monthly (March) meeting of the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, a letter was read from the Bishop of Melbourne, in which he stated that during the last ten months the population of the district of which he had the ecclesiastical supervision had more than trebled, while he had no more churches, except two or three small tents or wooden buildings at the gold fields, than he had when the discovery of gold in such abundance produced such a complete change in the character of the colony. The committee gave notice that at the next ordinary meeting they would propose that the sum of £1350 be granted towards sending out an iron church and parsonage house to the gold-fields.

THE NEW BILL ON JEWISH DISABILITIES.—In this Bill there are six clauses, to the effect that in the abjuration oath, when administered to the Jews, the words "upon the true faith of a Christian" are to be omitted. Persons professing the Jewish religion are to make a declaration. Such persons are not to hold certain offices in the state, or the church, nor are they to present to benifices in right of office. Further, it is proposed to enact that Jews are not to advise in the appointment to offices in the established church.

From London, we learn that Earl Grey's work on the "Colonial Policy of Lord John Russell's Administration" has just been published. It is in the form of letters addressed to Lord John himself, and is, as may be supposed, chiefly devoted to a vindication of Lord Grey's official management from the charges which have been brought against it. The work is written in a temperate one, devoid of acrimony, and with an occasional show of magnanimous frankness in confessing small errors. But, altogether, this vindication will probably do the author more harm than good. It shows, what many people have been unwilling to believe, that he really has no great liking for representative government, and that he is an ardent advocate of the system of convict transportation. Considering the position and opportunities of the writer, the work disappoints one. The views expounded in it are sometimes trite, sometimes fallacious. The reasoning is frequently illogical; still more often opinions are expressed dogmatically, without any attempt to support by reasoning. It is the work of a narrow-minded self-willed man. After reading this book, one ceases to wonder at Earl Grey's failure in office.

Messrs. Rothschild and Co. have completed a loan, amounting to three millions of livres, with the Government of the Grand Duke of Tuscany, at the rate of 61 per cent.

TAVISTOCK.—The weather on Dartmoor has been very severe during the past week, and in the neighbourhood of the prisons snow in some places is from ten to twelve feet deep. On Sunday afternoon Corporal Panton and privates Driver and Carlin, of the 7th Fusiliers, stationed at the prison at Prince Town, unfortunately lost their lives in the snow. The two privates, who only left the Royal Military Hospital last week, marched from the head-quarters at Davenport early on Saturday morning, under charge of Corporal Ramsden, who conducted them seven miles, to the village of Jump, where they were received by Corporal Panton, who took them four miles further, to the Dousland Barn Inn. Snow having fallen all day, the landlord advised them not to proceed, but the corporal said he must obey oders, and the three marched on. It is surmised from the position in which their hats and knapsacks were scattered, that they passed through the first snow-drift on the margin of the moor, a mile and a-half from the inn, and reached the Devil's Bridge, a mile and a-half further. There they could not proceed, and retraced their steps to the first drift, which by that time had become impassable and here they unhappily perished. Private Smith, of the same regiment, who returned to Davenport on Saturday, states that he and Corporal Panton were four hours in the morning coming from Dousland Barn (five miles), being at times up to their arms in snow, which was in some parts eight feet deep. He endeavoured to dissuade the corporal from returning the same evening. The bodies of the two privates were found near the Bridge, and that of the corporal near the hotel at Prince Town, almost within sight of his destination.—The want of provisions is sadly felt by the residents at Prince Town, as no carts or vehicles can travel. All the convicts are on half allowance. Many have been sent to Tavistock for bread, when one of them attempted to make his escape, but his sufferings were so great that, after passing many hardships, he was compelled to go to a blacksmith's shop by the roadside, and was carried back to the prison incapable of walking.

FOUR-ROOMED COTTAGE AT O'CONNELL TOWN, 10 ALLOTMENTS AT CAMPERDOWN.

Lots 1 to 5 have each a frontage of 24 feet to Lambert-street, and a depth of 90 feet abutting upon

Lots 16 to 20, which have frontages of 24 feet to Samuel-street, and are 80 feet deep.

Lot 6, also situate in Chippendale-place, has a frontage of 26 feet, and a depth of 48 feet 8 inches. On this allotment are built

These properties are approached from Abercrombie-place, leading out of Parramatta-street between the Kent Brewery and Brisbane Distillery, and are in a locality which is daily improving in value,—their position, from its contiguity to the leading thoroughfare of the city being most eligible, as it is well known that vacant spots in this neighbourhood will soon be absorbed by the rapid extension of the city. 9235

EXCELLENT CITY PROPERTY,
Corner of Yurong and Liverpool streets.

MR. MORT will sell by auction, at his Rooms, Pitt-street, THIS DAY, Tuesday, 14th June, at 11 o'clock,

Immediate possession will be given.

A plan on view at the Rooms.

The above houses are very eligibly and healthfully situate in the above populous and improving neighbourhood, and in these times, whether for occupation or investment, offer a favourable opportunity to lay out money.

Lot 30 has a house erected upon it.

Lots 31—34 are on the opposite side of the reserved road, and have similar frontages and depths to the preceding four allotments.

There is also an excellent attic bed-room. Every advantage has been taken of the stair recesses, &c., throughout the house, for fitting up cupboards and shelves.
